

Swiss Programme for Erasmus+
Grants Call 2024

Youth in Action: International mobility projects¹

All countries worldwide are eligible programme countries for international mobility.

Mobilities are granted according to concrete activities and subsidised according to predefined flat rates for subsistence, travel, organisation, etc. (see grant table).

- Travel costs: Flat-rate travel allowances help cover the costs of the return journey from the place of residence to the location where the activity takes place. As a rule, public transportation should be used. The programme countries are grouped into four geographical regions. The allowances are based on the distance from the country of origin to the destination country.
- Subsistence costs: These allowances are designed to cover accommodation and meals and other personal expenses of the participants. The flat-rate allowances for subsistence are based on the cost of living in the destination country and are divided into three country categories. For European Overseas Countries and Territories (OCTs), the lump sum of the respective EU Member State to which a Country or Territory belongs, i.e. Denmark (Greenland), France (e.g. Reunion), the Netherlands (e.g. Aruba) or the United Kingdom (e.g. Falkland Islands), is allocated.
- Special needs costs: The costs associated with the participation of people with disabilities may be claimed, e.g. special transportation for wheelchair-users. The notification of requirements can be submitted with the application for funding if the participation of a person with special needs is already known at this point. If this is not the case, it can be submitted at any time during the project, or at the latest with the final report. The notification of requirements must indicate the estimated amount, the final expense claim must be based on actual costs as per supporting documents (receipts).
- Organisation costs: The flat-rate for organisational support is a contribution to the applicant institution to cover project costs such as material, dissemination and information events.

For Youth Exchanges, an optional Advance Planning Visit can be included in the application (same flat-rates as for youth exchanges).

¹ Grants for the European Voluntary Service programme are listed separately and can be found in the programme guide on our website.
